“ Hey, grandma it's cole i'm going to be 22 in less than a month and this year im excited but it's feels very different than every birthday ive ever had, like i feel more grown and it really suck your not here to guide me thru it, i think about you a lot and feel stuck pondering on your passing, i grow each and ever month i wish i took more advantage of time with you and my sibilings and cousins being around oh how lucky i was, things have been a rollar coaster since you been gone aunt shell loves you and so does aunt carole they both miss you v much and i see them struggling i wish i could help, my mom "paula" is doing ok but you know it's not her fault, i wish mental illness was better understood, ive learned u can't pls every human being around you and if you spend every moment trying to you'll be miserable so be you. people arnt gonna understand some things about who or why certain things happen but all that matter is your happy and you fight. mom always says if you can't do something figure it out urself no one else will i don't know if you taught her that but i like to have that in my head. i miss you deeply and im sorry im really sorry i didnt talk to you much when i was with aubrey i was just figuring stuff out, and it sucks i really tried to call you i was trying to see you, i wish you were conceise enough to see me the day before :( i hope where ever your soul is your so loved and i appreciate you and u did raise me i think i get the kindness and symphony i feel for ppl even when they hurt me is from you, i just hope when my time comes i just hope they take and learn that time is very taken for granted, treat ppl how u want to be treated, all the grandkids r young still rn but their entering the life's now and it's gonna be rough it was really rough for me but at least i had some knowledge of a "mother and father figure " but i grew me as a human and i still have trouble functioning but i figure it out i have a good job right now it makes me sad no one wants to reach out, i still cling and think ab old friends and family i miss them sm, everyone's changed and it like im stuck on the past bcz also i understand everyone's busy grandma but like i find myself scrolling thru old vids on fb and wonder and could see what little me was doing, there's this one santa vid at the library on my dads fb i was the one recording and helping "santa" make brooke and kendall see i tried the best to let everyone have a childhood and i took so long on that as a kid myself and never got one myself so now i know i need to take things slower and live it got me into a lot of bad things bcz all i wanted is to fit in, i do things for myself now and ppl see it as mean? like i was there and it hurts sometimes bcz brooke was getting her own hoco dress the other day i went w and i remember that feeling of anxiety and i miss kendall a lot she don't talk to me much i always thought to stay close w them bcz i didnt want us hating or splitting up like aunt carole and michelle and mom did as we grew into adults i just want to help people but anyway im doing okay and actually great and learn new things everyday, elliot is nice just different and people r different i miss you i hope i see u one day :( i hope austin is okay and could've gotten the help. it's just nothings fair i wonder what the future has my dad is sick sadly and has been he won't go the doctor :( i got him to florida like i always have i've just been setting boundaries and it's rough grandma i miss u, i don't think u would like thing r now but i really do and KNOW things would've gone different in the last 2 years if u were still here. please vist me in my dreams or something ;(

“ hey, idk what i continue to write to you here but it's like your listening, idk how much longer i can hold on, since i've been a adult my life has been nothing but hell, since you've passed life is moving to fast and i still don't understand anything granmda, i'm stuck in florida and i don't like it here i hate mom sometimes she's so mean to me, and i really do try but it's like i have to parent her, i miss my cousin, they don't really talk to me anymore unless i reach out, no one really does. that's part of life tho figuring out how to do stuff on your own, and loosing people and growing, i've learned to many lessons and it's wild, every views me as crazy or weird but they don't understand i wish you were here, i fear the next time ill see my family up there is another funeral for someone, if i had 5k it would turn my life around, its just so crazy how everything is different and im stuck i never got anything handed to me ive had struggle just wanting stability is that to much to ask for ? i love you things are better recently it's just hard and i'm so tired and i miss the past, nostalgia really hurts, i hope i get to make it to your age, and things are okay. i think it's so weird i really do care for people and bend over backwards a lot but when im the one down it's no. or im the bad guy. i love you grandma hopefully i see you soon.

“ it’s been almost 2 years, this is insane. it feels like its been a lifetime and more, life has went by so slowly ever since you passed. i miss you so much, my whole entire world fell apart after you passed. i cant believe it, not only is grief difficult but staying here, on earth, without you is very difficult aswell as watching mom and pap deal with grief. everyone says that grief eventually passes on once you get through the stages but i’ve went through all the stages multiple times and i still miss you, every single day. i know you’d be disappointed in the person i’ve became. i messed up so bad, im so sorry. my story isn’t over yet though, im not letting it end like this i refuse, i want to have my happy ending, i dont care how it happens i just want a happy life. i dont want to be like this forever, i want to be happy. i want to be covered from head to toe in gods everlasting love. i need to get closer to god, i want to get closer to god, but i feel like the whole world turned their backs on me when i started acting like this and doing what i do, im trying to get better. i stopped smoking weed, i stopped drinking, im trying my hardest to stop vaping. it’s difficult, but im trying. im going to quit this time, i say that everytime but i truly mean it with everything in me this time. i want to be better, i want to be healthy and vaping is holding me back from losing weight and not even just that its holding me back from being the best version of myself. it makes me crazy, i just want to be normal but i keep getting told im not. i despise it. i want to be normal. i want to be “perfect”, and i know theres no such thing as perfect but according to society there is, and that is what i want to be. i want to perfectly fit into those standards, those impossible standards. but i feel like once i reach that point then i’ll no longer yearn for beauty. i know im “pretty” in some peoples eyes, but aslong as im like this then i’ll never be pretty in my own eyes. i’ll always see myself as some type of monster, like makeup on a pig. i hate it so much, and i know you would be so so upset to hear me say that. anyways i didnt come here to vent, well i did but thats enough for now. i just wish i could have one more long talk with you, in the dining room, you sitting in your chair (which nobody is allowed to sit in now.) and me sitting in your walker. i miss you more than anything ever. i just want my (platonic) soulmate back, you will always be my bestest friend. nobody is ever taking that spot from you, i dont care how many people i call my bestfriend throughout life, they will never ever take that spot. it will always be reserved to you. i know i did enough typing, but i feel like if i type on here or text your facebook that you actually read it and in a way it heals me. i feel like you see all my little messages i leave you and you just crack a smile. i wish i could see your smile, hear you laugh, or even just see your beautiful face one more time. if i could i would 100% take back everytime i said "no, i dont wanna see grandma right now, i'll go next time" or "i dont feel like talking right now" i just want one more conversation. i really really wish heaven had a phone, so i could talk to all my sweet angels up in heaven, including you my beautiful grandma. your the best thing that God could have given me and the worst thing he could have taken away, but i know it was for the greater good, you were hurting. im glad he took you out of your pain in misery but watching you lie there in the hospital bed and watching you flatline felt like what it was to lose a pet, or to lose yourself. the day you died you took a huge part of me with you, and i'll never get it back. i'd let you keep it even if i could take it back though. you were like a mom growing up, atleast when my mom wasn't around, and you were the best second mom a girl could ask for. i just wish you were here to watch me graduate high school & college and hopefully one day walk me down the isle, i always wanted it to be you to walk me down the isle. just know there will definitely be a front row seat reserved for you. i love you grandma, until next time. goodbye for now sweet angel☐

“ Its been 1 year, 6 months, 6 days, 20 hours, 2 minutes, and 19 seconds, since you passed grandma. This year and a half have gone by so slowly, I can't keep living without you. I need you, my every waking second mourns for you. I'll see you soon though, until then I'll keep my head high and my feet on the ground. I know I seem like I can't get through the grieving part and that's true. I'm here every other month, on this page, writing to you. I feel like when I do this you can see it, that you're reading exactly what I have to say to you. So on that note, everybody is slowly getting better they're not crying as much as I am, and thats amazing. I love watching them heal, but it feels like the more they heal the more I grief. I can't live like this, crying every single day over someone who's never coming back. I wish you were still here so I can have one more time when I was sitting on your walker and we would just talk and talk until all of our problems just disappeared. I wish I could have that relationship with mom, she really wants it but it's just not the same. I want to be close with her, but she's not you. So from every corner of my heart, I miss you. I love you, and i'll be seeing you very soon up in heaven grandma.

“ in just 1 month and 22 days it will be a year.. i don't think i'll ever fully process this.. I guess this is as close as I'll get to ever talking to you again.. You'd be so dissapointed if you'd see how my life's going. Mom says shes not but I can tell everyone in the house is extremely dissapointed. I've tried to change for the better but I just cant. it would be way easier if I had my favorite person back.. I miss you more than anyone can imagine. I love to think that if you were here you'd defend me and help me get through my strongest battles. I use to think I could never dissapoint you, but I'm only 15 and I'm quickly falling down the path I swore to myself I wouldn't because what I dealt with growing up. after watching mom go through different struggles most my childhood you'd figure I would know better then to get in trouble. I guess not though just its not that I want to get in trouble I just want to be noticed and this behavior gets me noticed by everyone in school and by my mom alot more, even if shes scolding me atleast shes talking to me.. It feels like shes growing so distant once again and I hate it. I just want my mother back because if she leaves I got no one since your gone.. I love you grandma

“ Grandma I can't believe its been two months without it feels like just yesterday we were in the dining room talking on and on for hours a day. I don't know how much longer this family can make it without you. No matter how much I try to avoid thinking about you but even tho i try not to the images of you in the hospital always pop up everytime someone brings your name up. When we got told that you passed I thought there wasn't no way that could be true so I went in the room to figure out and your lifeless body was lying there so cold and still. I tried not to cry in front of everyone and instead be a shoulder to cry on but the tears wouldn't stop I had to leave so I went downstairs and I had the worst panic attack imaginable right in front of tons of strangers.. Everytime I think of you I want to remember the good times but I never can all I can think about is you crying about not going to the hospital because you thought nobody would be there for you but everyone was visiting you and pap stayed with you the whole time. The doctors said you would be fine and was getting out ICU the next day and then god decided it was your time. I don't want to believe it grandma im gonna miss you so much man... I can't seem to every stop thinking about you. I know you were in so much pain and now that your up in heaven your running around again but I still need you down here it wasn't your time.. One day we will meet again grandma..

“ Oh Chrissy Tina I can't believe you are not here anymore. You are out of pain and you have no fear. I know you are at the feet of Jesus and with mom and dad. May you rest in peace my dear sister. I will forever miss you and love you. Until we meet again.

Melody and family. I am so sorry for your loss. You have been through so much with the losses you have experienced in your family. But as you know and I know they are in heaven with each other. Love you!
